Business Planning & Goal setting: What is the business trying to achieve? What will it do? How will it do it? This module focuses on the creation of clear goals and clear plans to achieve a clear objective.

Business Law: Explore the statutory responsibilities of managers as learners look into the legalities of business and business executives.

Managing in Today's world: Business in the modern world. This module focuses on governance and equality as a means to do right in business.

Managing People In Organizations: This module will develop learners' understanding of the integration of hardware and software components.

Culture & Organization: What is culture? What do you associate with culture? Perhaps art and music, perhaps values and beliefs, language and communication, behavior – in fact, culture is a collection of all of these things. Terpstra and David (1991) define culture as 'a learned, shared, interrelated set of symbols which unite and identify members of society'.

Developing Personal Skills: The manager working in a modern organization needs a wide range of skills. The manager needs to be able to work with people. This may involve a very wide range of skills in communication, leadership, encouraging teamwork, listening, and so on.

Effective communication: During a typical day, a manager is likely to encourage team members, tell them about a change in their future work or conditions, take part in a formal meeting, have an informal conversation at the water cooler or coffee machine, study a strategy planned by senior management, send e-mails to customers or suppliers, and search the Web.

Managing Ethically: Unfortunately, it is not always easy to decide on what we mean by 'the right action'. For example, think of a company that produces excessive amounts of waste in its factory. Closing the factory will harm the employees and shareholders, and will reduce the amount of money available in the local community. Keeping it open without reducing waste will damage the environment for local people and for future generations.

Performance Management: The people in an organization determine whether the organization is successful or not. Think for a moment about any organization – in doing this you will also be thinking about people. Every organization has people within it, and the success of the organization is largely due to those people.

Strategic Human Resources Management: Human Resource Management is the management of a key resource in the organization – people. Without people, there is a limit to what the organization can achieve. The machines cannot operate without people to work them (even if they are automatic machines there needs to be a person who programs them). The raw materials need to be turned into something that can be sold: this requires people. The computers need people to operate them.

High Performance Team: In a world of change, uncertainty, and complexity, high performance in an organization requires a blend of diverse skills and experiences. Organizations recognize that this blend is best achieved through team working.

Leadership skills : Good leadership is essential for success in any organization, whether private or public sector. Today, rapid change, in the form of a constantly changing competitive environment, in novations in technology, and changing economic conditions, have led to the realization that leadership is a skill to be developed.

Motivating and Influencing People: Good leadership is essential for success in any organization, whether private or public sector. Today, rapid change, in the form of a constantly changing competitive environment, innovations in technology, and changing economic conditions, have led to the realization that leadership is a skill to be developed. processing.
